COLOGNE. NEWSPAPER ANNOUNCES PLAN TO SINK BRITISH SHIPS NEAR UNITED STATES COAST.

ADMIT BREMEN'S LOSS

Admit Merchant Liner, a Month Overdue, is Probably Destroyed—Deny That U-53 Has Been Sunk.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Amsterdam, Oct. 19.—The Volks Zeitung of Cologne, says: "German submarines will operate in the future in the western Atlantic. They will visit the well known shipping route around the eastern point of Nantucket Island, and will sink British merchantmen after giving crews opportunity to save themselves."

The correspondent believes this activity will affect the supplying of food, especially bran, bacon and lard, to England.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Loss of the German submarine merchantman Bremen virtually was conceded today by ranking Teutonic diplomats in position to be familiar with the movements of the vessel. The Bremen is now one month overdue.

Berlin Lacks Information.

It was admitted that German officials not only in this country but Berlin were without information as to the fate of the Bremen. All they knew is she set out for America from Bremerhaven and she should have arrived at an American port soon after the middle of last month. It is regarded as doubtful that accurate information concerning the fate of the vessel will be available until after the close of the war, if then.

The disappearance of the Bremen will not cause the abandonment of a project to send German merchant submarines to the United States, it was said.

There appeared to be reason to expect that another submarine sea raid, either the Deutschland or some other, would reach an American port some time within the next month.

Doubt British Capture.

German officials in Washington do not believe the Bremen could have fallen into hands of the British unless she had some accident to that machinery. They believe, however, that the submarine was not captured by the British, and therefore are not open to the same risk.

When the Bremen was last seen, she was in the North Atlantic, and it was believed she was on her way to the United States. The vessel was last seen on Oct. 10, and it was believed she was on her way to the United States. The vessel was last seen on Oct. 10, and it was believed she was on her way to the United States.

Since then hope that the submarine might be safe has held each day, and today she was spoken of as having been lost.

The Bremen had arrived safely in New London, Conn., were published in newspapers here. It was more than two weeks ago that it was reported that a dock had been especially arranged for the reception of the craft. She carried a crew of approximately twenty-five men.

Denies Report.

Newport News, Va., Oct. 19.—Captain Beck, master of the British steamer North Pacific, today positively denied publication of information from the British warship, to the effect that the German submarine U-53, which raided allied and neutral shipping off Nantucket on Sunday Oct. 8, had been sunk. Captain Beck said: "I know nothing concerning the submarine, and if the report was given out from my ship, it probably came from Greek members of the crew. The steamer had little or no English, and carried conversations of the officers who were speculating concerning the fate of the submarine."

Condor Liner Sunk in Channel.

New York, Oct. 19.—The Condor liner has been sunk by a mine in the English channel between Falmouth and London, according to cable advices today.

The Alunia sailed from this port on Oct. 15, with passengers, but Condor liner officials say they were all landed at Falmouth.

Captain Benzon and some of the crew were saved, according to cable message, but some are missing. The Alunia called at Falmouth Tuesday and was on her way to London when she struck the mine, sometime this morning.

The Alunia was comparatively a new boat, having been built in 1913. She was 520 feet long, and had gross tonnage of 13,405, was sixty-four foot beam, and had a depth of forty-three feet.

Vessels Lost.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Dispatches to the state department today report the sinking of the British steamer Kenneth, by a submarine and the landing of the body of her captain. The steamer Danzig, presumably Norwegian, also was reported sunk by a German submarine, and the British steamer Norma was reported disabled south of Greenland light vessel, by a pelopier becoming entangled in a net stretched by Germans to trap submarines.

JAPAN'S NEW ENVOY IS NOW AT CAPITAL

Count Almoro Sato, who succeeds Viscount Chinda as ambassador from Japan to the United States, has been officially presented to Secretary Lansing and other state department officials. He will present his credentials to President Wilson when the latter returns to Washington from Shadow Lawn.

MINERS ENTOMBED IN EXPLOSION IN SHAFT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Fairmont, W. Va., Oct. 19.—An explosion in Mine No. 7 of the Jamieson Coal & Coke company, at Barrackville, near here, today damaged the shaft and entombed a number of men. The exact number has not yet been determined, as the shaft was not in operation.

It was declared that no more than twenty men were in the mine and that a number were usually employed making repairs when the shaft was not in operation. Officials estimated the number of men who were inside had been killed, as the explosion seemed to have been caused by coal dust, and was apparently of great violence. The shaft is 300 feet deep.

IOWA TROOPS WILL HAVE THEIR VOTES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 19.—Iowa troops on the Mexican border will be allowed to vote, under a decision handed down by Attorney General George Cosson and made public at noon today. The decision declares that the law passed during the civil war permitting Iowa soldiers in the Union army to vote still is valid and in force.

Governor Clarke said today he would appoint four commissioners to go to the border and take the vote of the Iowa troops. He said the appointment would be made at once and that a non-partisan commission consisting of two democrats and two republicans would be chosen. The governor added the commissioners would be sent to the border about a week before election day.

SOCIALISTS BEGIN WORK IN MILWAUKEE

Have Full Party Ticket in Field as Well as State Ticket—Active in Cream City.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 19.—Milwaukee socialists today were preparing the hot fire of their campaign in the coming elections. The Socialists have a full city ticket in the field as well as a full state ticket. With the exception of two or three districts, they have congressional candidates in every Wisconsin district. The strongest congressional campaign is being waged here, where former Congressman Victor L. Berger, and State Senator W. R. Gaylord, are candidates in the fifth and fourth districts respectively.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rock Island, Oct. 19.—Five persons were injured when an auto in which they were driving at midnight last night, struck a tree on the main drive way of the Rock Island wrecked, and was driven by Thos. McClelland, a wealthy youth of Davenport. The injured were rushed to a hospital. Three of the victims were women.

CLAIMS HEALEY GAVE TWO SETS OF ORDERS

CAPTAIN O'BRIEN SAYS WRITTEN ORDERS FOR PUBLIC EFFECT WERE COUNTERMANDED.

COULD GRANT FAVORS

Police Captains Were Allowed to Condone Law-Breakers, But Must Avoid Reformers, He Testifies.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Secret history of the Chicago police department was exposed to the light today in Judge Olson's court by Captain W. P. O'Brien. Captain O'Brien stated Chief of Police Healey issued written orders to captains under him merely to impress the public, and nullified these by giving contrary verbal instructions.

The orders which O'Brien said were given out for public consumption were strictly and impartially enforced.

Contrary Orders on "Quiet."

"On the quiet, however," Captain O'Brien said, "he told us we were to make absolutely no arrests for violation of the Sunday closing order against saloons. We were merely to report violations to him."

Assistant State's Attorney Johnson said he would introduce evidence to show no effort at all was made to enforce the Sunday closing order against saloonkeepers who were allied with Mayor Thompson in politics, but that vigorous enforcement was visited on democratic and anti-Thompson republicans. The saloon men, Johnson said, were able to get "right" with the administration by joining the Sportsmen's club of America.

Chief Healey, asked that police captains who have been held in court awaiting their turns on the stand, be excused.

"It will do them good to hear the testimony," remarked Judge Olson.

All but three were allowed to return to their districts, subject to summons by telephone.

Tells of Captains' Meeting.

Captain O'Brien was questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnson.

"Did the chief tell captains they might grant favors, even when these were contrary to the law?" asked the lawyer.

"At these captains' meetings, did he say anything about reform organizations?"

"Yes, he told us he did not care a bit about reform organizations, and that some of the captains had a habit of running to the reformers with their grievances. He told us not to do this. He said the mayor had not complained to him about conditions."

"There was usually a stenographer present at these meetings of captains."

"Yes, Sergeant Naughton usually took down the meetings in shorthand."

"Was Naughton there when you got the instructions about not making arrests?"

"I think not."

"Land Clearing Special" Train Makes Demonstration in Wilder Part of Wisconsin.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Armstrong, Wis., Oct. 19.—Wisconsin's co-operative land clearing special closed its itinerary with a demonstration here yesterday. The train has been on the road since September 18.

The College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin, assisted by three manufacturing companies, and the Wisconsin Advancement association, have been responsible for the series of demonstrations, which have been witnessed by 15,000 people, largely farmers and settlers directly interested in finding quicker, cheaper and easier ways of land clearing. Since it started, the train has been working over an itinerary of 17 towns in 10 counties with an extra demonstration at the Ladysmith fair.

Horse power pumping machinery, a one man pulper, and dynamite have been used on the trip. The stumps have been piled for burning by the home-made Cornish plier, the invention of a Wisconsin settler.

SNOW STORM RAGING IN WESTERN STATES MAY HIT WISCONSIN

Fall Blizzard Sweeping Nebraska, Dakota, Iowa and Minnesota is Headed This Way.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Omaha, Oct. 19.—Rain and sleet storm which lasted most of the night, turned to snow near here early this morning and at 10:30 was still heavily falling. The snow storm extended practically over all of South Dakota, Nebraska and western Iowa. From Norfolk, Nebraska, four inches of snow was reported today with high northwest wind.

In South Dakota, the temperature was reported at slightly below the freezing point, with two inches of snow. The storm in South Dakota continued unabated at 10:30 p. m. The western portion of Iowa also felt the grip of the storm. Sioux City is covered with two inches of snow.

In Minnesota, the most severe fall blizzard since the memorable storm of October 15, 1880, prevailed in Pipestone today at dawn, moving rapidly eastward. No material damage has been reported from any of the towns visited by the storm, which originated in Montana last Tuesday.

TALK ON TARIFF AT CREAM CITY MEETING

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 19.—Declaring that the United States should go in for industrial preparedness that will insure a condition of genuine and general prosperity, Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor under President Taft, made a convincing appeal for the republican protection of the tariff before an audience that filled the Plunkinton hall, the Auditorium, Tuesday night. Mr. Nagel asserted that democratic legislation has been the cause of the present economic emergency, and he said it is high time the republicans were put back into power so that the country may be saved from such a dire situation as would anticipate a situation and not merely wait for it. He anticipates that grave conditions may result from the deplorable neglect of the tariff, which he enumerated as one of the flagrant mistakes of the democratic administration.

Mr. Nagel does not share the apprehensions of those who prophesy that this country will be flooded with an influx of cheap European labor after the war. He believes that the same manhood and workahood that are standing by their countries under stress of war, will continue to stand by their countries after the war is over.

He declared that this country is entirely unprepared to meet the commercial conditions that will result from competition with these people, who will work and produce as hard as the republicans restored, in a patriotic effort to build up their countries. He declared his inability to see any material difference between an influx of cheap European labor and the people come over here bodily and undermine American labor, and cited the case of Japanese manufacture where capital, machinery and labor were imported, and a laboring class that is willing to work under old conditions.

Punctuating the picture of alleged prosperity under the democratic regime, Mr. Nagel said: "Don't let anyone tell you that prosperity results from changing factories into ammunition manufacturing plants. Very few men outside the wage-earners make all the money."

"This war will end one of these days and when it does, where will the wage-earners be who get good salaries now in the ammunition business? There will be no export markets because these have been neglected during the war. Men will not only get low wages, they will not be able to find work. They will just come to the conclusion that this is real prosperity."

ENGLAND TO ARM ALL MERCHANTMEN?

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, Oct. 19.—The Kriegs Zeitung, the evening edition of the official German press, publishes a report that the British have ordered the arming of all merchantmen, and says that as a result Germany may be forced to take up a sharper submarine campaign with consequent danger to German-American relations. It continued:

If it is true that England actually intends to arm all her merchantmen with heavy and, therefore, far carrying guns, and thus label them plainly as warships intended for attack, it cannot be a matter of indifference whether we do or not, we must give a sharp tendency to our submarine campaign."

ITALIANS KIDNAP GIRL AT MADISON

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, Oct. 19.—Four Italians entered the home of Sam Tosi here this morning, and while they held the mother and child, they dragged the sixteen year old Vita, from her bedroom and spirited her away in an automobile. Charles E. Johnson, a French agent, has been arrested and identified as two of the abductors. The girl is still missing.

PRESIDENT'S TRAIN DELAYED BY CROWDS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Oct. 19.—The train bearing President Wilson to Chicago for a twelve hours' visit and a program of public speeches, was an hour late, owing to crowds along the route, reaching Ohio and Indiana, which encroached on the scheduled time of the train. An immense crowd waited patiently at the railroad station, and along the streets to be traveled by the presidential party to the hotel.

ONE DEAD IN WRECK IN MANITOWOC YARDS

ENGINEER KILLED AND FIREMAN PERHAPS FATALLY HURT IN CRASH ON NORTH WESTERN.

SWITCH MEDDLED WITH

Deliberate Attempt to Derail Train Endangering Lives of Fifty Passengers is Uncovered.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Manitowoc, Oct. 19.—Train No. 111, limited, on the Chicago and North-western railroad, running from Milwaukee to Ashland, was wrecked inside the local yards early today about half a mile from the depot, Engineer Robert Fitzgerald, aged sixty, of Milwaukee, being killed outright, and Albert Duchaise, aged thirty-five, fireman of Green Bay, is believed to be buried under the wreck. Several others on the train received minor injuries.

Switch Tampered With.

A switch leading to the plant of the Invinible company had been thrown after a lock was broken, and the miscreant had taken the switch light, turning it so that a green light, indicating a clear track, was shown.

The fact that the train was made up of steel cars and was running slow, prevented the loss of life to about fifty persons on the train. It was the fifth attempt in several months to wreck this limited train since last spring.

The engine rolled over on its side, and the baggage car and tender went into the ditch six feet down an embankment. Seven coaches, chain car and two or three sleepers did not leave the track. Had the cars been wooden, the loss of life would have been serious.

George Gaffney of Milwaukee was in charge of the train, and William Williams was the express messenger. Williams was thrown against the side of the mail car, and Peter Mittling, a mail man, was buried under a pile of sacks torn from their hangings, but escaped serious injuries. A number of Manitowoc people were aboard the train but none were hurt.

Fire Truck Hits Street Car.

The fire department, in answering a call, collided with a street car, the hook and ladder demolishing the front part of the car.

A call was sent to Green Bay for a wrecking outfit, but the wrecker was too small to handle the situation, and a wrecker was sent from Chicago, as the Milwaukee outfit was in use on the Madison division. Superintendent La Comb of Green Bay and Chief of Motor Power Hoyt of Chicago, are right here. Since last spring all trains have been ordered to slow down while passing through the Calumet yards.

Many Attempts.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—At the general offices of the Chicago and Northwestern today it was said that the repeated attempts to wreck this particular train was probably the work of an insane person.

The first attempt was made three years ago when the engine was derailed. Subsequent attempts also on the same train were made in the same general neighborhood of last night. Derives worked on the various cases without discovering the wrecker, and it became the practice of the road to run all trains slowly in the Calumet yards. A force of railroad detectives left here for Manitowoc immediately upon receiving news of the accident.

DARING AVIATORS DESTROY TURK AEROS

British Airmen as Result of Raid in Egypt Gain Advantage by Thrilling Flights.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Ismailia, Egypt, Oct. 19.—British aviators claim a recent test performed during the recent raid on the Turkish aerodrome at El Arish. During the raid one of the pilots was forced to land several miles west of the aerodrome, having been damaged by shrapnel. While trying to repair his engine, he was discovered by another British machine, carrying a pilot and an observer, which forced him to render assistance. It was found that the damaged machine was past repair and the aviators burned it to prevent it from falling into the hands of the Turks. The problem then was whether the rescuing aeroplane would be able to carry the three men away. All three climbed in, the rescued man was lowered to the ground, and the aviators found the machine was taken and finally it got into the air with its big load.

Ninety miles across the desert the three men flew until they reached safety at Kantara. It is claimed that no two-passenger machine has ever before flown ninety miles with three people aboard and that the rescue is one of the most unusual since the beginning of the war.

The El Arish raid also resulted in another unusual feat. The Turks were attacked by British machines and one British aviator descended to within 100 feet of a Turkish aeroplane which was standing on the ground surrounded by seven or eight machine guns. The British aviator dropped a bomb which blew machine and men to pieces.

It is said that a result of this raid the Turkish air service is completely disorganized for a month.

FLOUR KEEPS PACE AS WHEAT PRICES CONTINUE TO CLIMB

Chicago Bakers Predict Further Advance in Price of Bread—Fear Wheat famine By Spring.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Oct. 19.—The public is confronted with another increase in price of bread if wheat continues to advance, according to predictions today of leading bakers.

The ten cent jump in the price of wheat in the last two days, sent flour up 76 cents a barrel, which caused the big bakers to announce that in addition to the recent increases in the price of bread, they would have to make further advances unless something unforeseen lowers the price of flour. Bakers paid $5.50 a barrel for wheat last night, and yesterday, the highest price in Chicago in twenty years.

"Unless an embargo on exportation of flour and wheat is declared," said Paul Schuize, a prominent baker, "there will be a wheat famine before spring. Even as the situation is now, smaller millers are shutting down their plants and filling their orders by buying from Minneapolis mills."

"If wheat goes up, flour goes up," said B. H. Dahlheimer, president of the Master Bakers' association, "and this will mean the price of bread, or decrease the size of the bread in order to live."

NEED OF SOLDIERS STOPS FURLOUGHS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Oct. 19.—Need of all available soldiers in the regular army for continuing active service, has caused Secretary Baker to stop all applications for furloughs to the reserve, which under the national defense act may be secured by any man who has served one year with the colors.

The official order says that "under present unusual conditions, the reserve shall be readily granted to regular army men of exemplary character and who have acquired such efficiency in the service as to render them thoroughly dependable for service in case of war."

It has been held by army law experts that the furlough of enlisted men to the reserve rests upon discretion of the secretary, and is a privilege which, under normal conditions, shall be readily granted to soldiers of exemplary character and who have acquired such efficiency in the service as to render them thoroughly dependable for service in case of war.

DEMAND MANY FARM TOOLS AFTER WAR

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 19.—World wide demands for agricultural implements, labor saving machinery and farm operating equipment will develop as soon as Europe is at peace, said Dr. Edgar A. Ewing, Pratt chief of the fact and Bureau of Agricultural domestic commerce here today.

In addressing the convention of the National Implement and Vehicle association, Dr. Pratt said:

"The factories of all belligerent countries which have been producing agricultural machinery, recently have been producing only a small proportion of their former output, and some have almost entirely ceased to produce such implements. In some of the belligerent countries, not only have the stocks of machines been exhausted, but agriculturists have been forced to resort to machines of obsolete pattern and design."

"It has been almost impossible for many nations to get heavy agricultural machinery, and the transportation expense being prohibitive."

EXPECT WAR TO CONTINUE FOR A YEAR

HIGH BRITISH OFFICERS AND GERMAN PRISONERS AGREE THAT END IS STILL A LONG WAY OFF.

PLAN HARD CAMPAIGN

British Expect to Wear Out German Lines in North France.—Germany Plans to Completely Crush Rumania.

(Copyright 1916 by Associated Press.)

British Front in France, Oct. 18, via London, Oct. 19.—The war will last another year, according to the consensus of opinion among the British soldiers and their leaders. It is also the opinion of the German, if the views of prisoners count for anything.

Before the grand offensive started a high authority informed the correspondent of the Associated Press that the German lines would not be broken this summer, and that the new operations wearing down the Germans would be inaugurated, and would probably last through another summer. With the approach of winter conditions, which make military movements difficult, this officer recalls his prediction, and speaking of the situation today, said: "We know what the German resources were, and we know what ours were, and the time required to force a decisive victory for our arms is a matter of calculation."

German prisoners taken during the summer invariably spoke of peace being a certainty in the autumn. They regarded the German thrust as a final effort to force a decision and that after it peace would be made. Their tone has been entirely different of late. They recognize that in a fight, a British soldier has more power and resources of two foes, and that an ultimate decision will come from the fearful attrition on the western front, which now will know no intermission until the end.

The Germans are determined to make every village on the western front a fortress which will withstand the heaviest bombardment by shell fire, and every gully and crater a machine gun post, to secure their defense against a critical defeat.

At a period when the weather is adverse to offensive operations elsewhere, the Germans are apparently concentrating every possible man and gun against Rumania, so that when they have reduced to powder by shell fire, and every gully and crater a machine gun post, to secure their defense against a critical defeat.

At a period when the weather is adverse to offensive operations elsewhere, the Germans are apparently concentrating every possible man and gun against Rumania, so that when they have reduced to powder by shell fire, and every gully and crater a machine gun post, to secure their defense against a critical defeat.

It is a universal remark among the British that never has the morale of the prisoners varied more than always. "You will see that the Germans are getting very few of ours," said the staff officer. "Though small parties of our men are being taken, the daily operations in this kind of complicated operations at close quarters, they do rather than yield. This shows their morale and the tempo of the situation. Some Germans were never fought better, and some have never fought so badly as in the last few weeks. Today, for example, twenty German prisoners were taken, but the soldiers who took them prisoners, or their commanders, had no illusion that these prisoners imply the condition of the German army as a whole. There were other Germans who were ready to fight with that ferocity which expects no quarter."

CHEESE FACTORY IS SEEKING LOCATION

WILL COME TO JANSVILLE IF SUFFICIENT MILK CAN BE PROCURED.

A MEETING IS CALLED

For Saturday Night at Which All
Milk Producers Are Requested to Be Present.

Milk producers in this vicinity, whether they belong to the local association or not, are requested to come to a meeting to be held Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the city hall. At this general meeting a proposition which has been made to the officials of the producers' association and has been regarded most favorably by them, will be put before the farmers and contracts signed with all who favor the scheme.

Representatives of a large cheese making concern in Illinois met with a number of prominent producers here this morning with a proposition to establish a cheese factory in Jansville which will at first handle the output of 700 cows, about 10,000 pounds of milk per day. After a time, the firm would take considerably more milk.

Operation will start as soon as a suitable location can be secured, and the equipment installed, said John Fisher, a prominent producer, this morning. The concern will pay the standard price for milk paid in Chicago and paid by all large concerns that take milk from the farmers. These prices are: November, $2.10; December, $2.10; January, $2.05; February, $2.00; March, $1.95. These prices are for milk with a 3.5 test; they agree to pay three cents a point above this standard. Prices are quoted net to the farmers.

It is expected that the plant will grow very rapidly as more milk is furnished them and that the industry will soon be a large one, and one that will bring much money into Jansville.

This plan has the advantage that only one set of cans will be required by the farmer; thus much expense is saved. On the whole, the proposition is a splendid one, concluded Mr. Fisher. "The prices paid are what we have been getting, and are up to the standard. We have looked over the field carefully and have found several suitable places for establishing a plant. It is likely that operations will begin by the first of November. We want all farmers to be at the meeting Saturday night to learn all the details of the scheme and to sign up contracts for the milk; we've got to have 700 cows at once."

As a result of the recent organization of the milk producers' association of Jansville and of the activity with which the officers of that organization have entered into the business of establishing some sort of a plant in this city for the milk, a number of offers have been made by the producers and have been carefully investigated.

At the present time farmers around here are shipping three thousand pounds of milk a day to Chicago at the Chicago prices. Christianson Brothers, a large Chicago firm, have made an investigation of the business of producing this milk and find them considerably above the average in modern sanitary conveniences. As a result of this investigation, they have made an investigation of the business of producing this milk and find them considerably above the average in modern sanitary conveniences.

The natural query of the Jansville citizen over this discussion is, where is the city's milk supply coming from? If all the milk is taken over by some firm for shipment to outside localities, in answer to the producers' plea, a number of creameries and cheese factories in the immediate vicinity, Milton Junction, Footville, etc., which are only waiting to close down, would be ready to take over the business. It is said that the city uses only about 10,000 pounds a day, and that that amount can be easily obtained from these sources.

Producers Playing Fair.
"We cannot understand the attitude which many of the men in Jansville take toward the establishment of some such plant here," said one official of the association. "The producers have no desire to put the retail dealers out of business, or even of cutting down their profits to such an extent that the business could not be conducted on a profitable basis. We are perfectly willing to deal with them, if they meet us on the outside terms which are now making arrangements. The retailers are not paying any more for milk now than they could when the farmer could produce milk at a considerably lower cost, yet they charge the consumer more. Retailers in other cities pay producers the price we ask, and sell at the same price the Jansville retailers do; why can't they do it?"

The Borden plant at Monroe takes 125,000 pounds of milk a day. This means a large sum of money paid out to farmers daily. It means the dumping into the city's circulation about $2,000 a day. This city is bound to be benefited by the deal. There is no reason why a similar business should not be established in Jansville, and it is our intention to exert every effort to locate such a firm here as soon as conditions are ready for it.

The producers' association will meet in a few days to consider the various offers being investigated at the present time by the officers.

Courses Opened in Continuation School.

A class in chemistry will be organized Thursday evening at 7:30 in the high school. This will be the beginning of a new class and no knowledge of the subject will be needed to enter the class. The students will have the privilege of working in the chemistry laboratory and using the apparatus. The subject will be made as practical as possible. A slight knowledge of chemistry will enable one to understand something of the condition in this country due to the war. The importance of the subject in our commercial and manufacturing industries is becoming more and more important, making chemical knowledge more desirable.

A few more students can be accommodated and anyone interested should be on hand Thursday evening. The instructor, Mr. Arbutnot, has charge of the subject in the high school. The second class, to be opened in the evening with particular attention paid to the social side of the busy housewife's work. This class will be limited to twelve and will take up much the same work that has been taught in previous courses with many new and unique features.

HUGHES ALLIANCE TO HAVE BRANCH IN CITY

M. P. Richardson and Judge Harry
Maxfield Have Charge of Work of Organization.

One of the nation wide political organizations that is not confined to strictly old party affiliations, but has to do with the present issues, is known as the Hughes Alliance. Various branches have been established in all the states and throughout the various states in individual cities. One of the branches in the city of Jansville is the Hughes Alliance, which is being organized by Mr. Richardson and Judge Maxfield.

Guy D. Goff, returned on Wednesday from a trip to New York, where he conferred with the national leaders, who told him that conditions were excellent. Little worrying is being done by the Hughes leaders, says Mr. Goff; they are confident that their candidate will win by a large majority. New York state itself has long since been placed in the "safe" column. The general opinion is that conditions in Wisconsin are good.

"In spite of the excellent conditions, we are not letting up in our work for a minute," said Mr. Goff. "and we will not let up until the voting booths are closed on Nov. 7. The interest of the Hughes campaign is remarkable, and volunteers are enlisting in the campaign by the thousands. The Hughes Alliance is not a political party; it has no partisan ends to serve. "We face a great national crisis, the greatest since 1861. One may not quarrel with the fact that President Wilson, but every American feels the need of a resolute man at the helm. Party lines will be lost sight of by those who are of the Hughes Alliance. The Hughes Alliance is not a party at all, except as it represents a union of men who believe in the election of Mr. Hughes. There are no dues; no pledge to support any platform; but simply to promote the cause for and support Charles E. Hughes."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Jansville, Wis., Oct. 19, 1916.
To the Club Women and the General Public:

I noticed an article published in the Gazette dated Oct. 17 in regards to the conditions in South Jansville. To make things plain to my friends and the public, I am willing at all times to have anyone come to my place for inspection. I can and do try to conduct a respectable place, and it has been my aim to cater to those that know how to conduct themselves as ladies and gentlemen. I have been in business going on my second year and have had no trouble of any kind. I have conducted my place as clean as you would your own home, and I expect to protect it in a manner that any lady or gentleman may enter and feel that they are absolutely safe in every respect. We only cater to the best—so everything must not be laid to the doors of South Jansville.

Little is known yet of the extent of the Colorado crop, but the other states are practically failures as producers this year. It is estimated that but 44% of the country's crop will be a success this season. All throughout this region many of the crops are total failures and all are far below average.

In the northern part of the state, noted as potato land, conditions are even worse. On one farm in that locality the yield was forty bushels to the acre this year whereas for the past three seasons 450 bushels have been taken off the same land.

Farmers and others are also indignant over the high prices demanded by commission men, and by the great trade made by these dealers. Many farmers in this vicinity who have been selling for 90c know that the same potatoes are sold by the commission merchants at $2.00. It is rumored that a large number of producers are organizing to sell direct to retail dealers, and thus cut out this needless, exorbitant profit.

The potatoes simply do not exist this season; there is no other alternative for the market trend, they must rise in price. Officials of the federal government who know the situation declare that they will be selling at $3.00 a bushel before the end of the winter.

CLINTON Y. M. C. A. OPENS WINTER WORK

First Meeting of Year Held Last Night—S. A. Boyd of Local Association Was Speaker.

The Clinton Y. M. C. A. made a good start with its winter classes on Wednesday, the 18th inst. About forty boys sat down to the opening banquet in the main room of the local Y. M. C. A. headquarters. The tables were loaded with the kind of edibles dear to the heart of boys. Rev. W. F. Ireland was the chairman of the evening and promptly at 7 o'clock he had the boys seated, after prayer by Rev. F. W. Bales.

The speaker of the evening was S. A. Boyd, physical director at the Janesville Y. M. C. A. In a manly and very interesting talk he showed the need of physical, mental and spiritual development, before there could be real manhood. He went on to say that the purpose of exercise was not merely to develop muscle but to develop control over every muscle, thus the boy would become master of his body instead of the body being master of the boy.

In closing the speaker referred to the greatest hero that has ever lived, the man Christ Jesus, who is worthy of the loyalty of every boy. Mr. Boyd was applauded heartily at the close of his remarks. The evening's entertainment was brought to a close by prayer by Dr. Sanderson.

"Father John's Medicine Gives Us Strength"

"Father John's Medicine certainly builds one up and gives you strength," writes Alice Dougherty, R. D. No. 15, Groton, N. Y., in a recent letter. "Continuing she says, 'I was all run down last winter when I began taking Father John's Medicine but I felt better after I had used it. I also gave it to my boys, Lawrence and Earl, and it has been a benefit to them.' (Signed) Mrs. Alice Dougherty, Groton, N. Y.) For a safe family medicine, for colds, throat troubles, and as an all-around tonic and body-builder, to give renewed strength to resist disease, Father John's Medicine is the standard medicine in thousands of homes all over the country, because mothers know it is safe to give their children as well as older people. It does its work without using alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form. Many families keep a bottle in the house constantly. If you have any difficulty in securing Father John's Medicine from your druggist, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., enclosing $1.00 for a large bottle by express prepaid.

The Idyl of Twin Fires

By WALTER
EATON

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Co.

I put the watering pot back in the shed, crossed the road to the old wooden pump by the barn on a sudden impulse, and pumped water on my hands and head, for I was hot. Mike stood in the barn door and laughed.

"What are you doing that for?" he asked. I stood up and shook the water from my face and hair. "Just to be a kid, I guess," I laughed. "There are some things Mike couldn't understand. Perhaps I did not clearly understand myself. In some dim way an old pump before a barn and the shock of water from its spout on my head was fraught with happy memories and with dreams. The sight of the pump at that moment had waked the echo of their mood.

But as I plodded up the road in the May twilight to supper, one of those memories came back with haunting clearness—a summer day, a long tramp, the tender wistfulness of young love shy at its own too sudden passion, the plunge of cool water from a pump, and then at twilight half-spoken words, and words unspoken, sweeter still.

The amethyst glow went off the hills that ring our valley, and a far blue peak faded into the gathering dusk. A light shivered off my spirit, too. I felt suddenly cold, and the cheery face of Mrs. Temple was the face of a stranger. I felt unutterably lonely and depressed. My farm was dust and ashes. That evening I savagely turned down a manuscript by a rather well-known author, and went to bed without confessing what was the matter with me. The matter was, I had pumped up a ghost.

CHAPTER IV.

Humbled by a Drag Scraper.

One of the advantages of being a bachelor when you are building or restoring a house is that you can spend most of your time in the garden. I am by nature a trusting soul, anyway (which no woman and possibly no wise man ever is where carpenters, builders and plumbers are concerned). He told me the plumbers were "doing all right," and I believed him. That he himself was doing all right my own eyes told me, for he had by now reached the south rooms, removed the dividing partition, revealing the old, hand-hewn oak beam at the top, and was cutting a double door out in the center on either side of the great oak upright, toward my future sundial lawn. I stood in this new door, looking back at my twin fireplaces, with their plain-paneled oak mantels.

"Mr. Howard," said I, "those mantels are about as plain as you could make 'em, and yet they are very handsome, somehow, dinky as they are." "It's the lines," said Hard Cider. "Just the right lines. Lower 'em six inches, and where'd they be?" "Could you build me a bookcase, against the wall, just like them, from one to the other, and bring it out at right angles five feet into the room from the center, making it the back of a double settle?" I asked.

"I'm a carpenter," Hard replied facetiously. I took his pencil and sketched what I wanted on a clean board.

"You got too much curve on the base and arms of them settles," he said judicially.

He took the pencil away from me, and made a quick, neat, accurate sketch of just what I instantly saw I did want.

I shrugged my shoulders. "Go ahead!" said I. "What did you ask me to draw it for in the first place?" "Folks likes to think they hev their own ideas," he answered.

my line of stakes, where the ramblers were to climb. Beyond that was the vegetable garden, newly harrowed and fertilized, where Mike and Joe were busily working, the one planting peas, the other setting out a row of beets. The horse was not in evidence. I could have him at last, to make my lawn! I ran around the house to the stable, put on the harness, hitched him to my new drag scraper, and drove him to the slope.

The ground here sloped down eastward toward the brook, and if I was to have a level lawn south of my house, I should have to remove at least two feet of soil from the western end, and deposit it on the eastern end. I wisely decided to start close to the house. Hauling at the handles of the heavy scraper and yelling "Back up, there!" at the horse, I got the steel scoop into the ground at the line of my proposed grape arbor, tipped down the blade, and cried, "Giddup!" I hung to the reins as best I could, twisting them about my wrist, and the horse started obediently forward. The scoop did its work very nicely. In fact, it was quite full after we had gone six feet, and I had only to let the horse drag it the remaining 94 feet of the proposed width of the lawn, and empty it. As the scraper covered a furrow but two feet wide, that meant 128 furrows to scrape my entire lawn as planned, and at least twenty trips to the furrow. I did some rapid multiplication, dropped the reins and moved toward my stakes. I saw that Joe and Mike were looking at me.

"I think," said I, with some dignity, as I began to pull the stakes up, "that this lawn will look better square. As it's a hundred feet broad, a hundred feet will be far enough to extend it from the house."

"Sure," said Mike, "the big road scraper 'll be over here tomorrow, scrapin' the road, and it do be easier an' quicker to berry that."

In some ways, I consider this remark of Mike's, under the circumstances, one of the most gentlemanly I ever heard! And I jumped at his suggestion.

"Mike," said I, "I'll admit this job is bigger than I thought. How can I borrow the road scraper?"

"Sure, ain't me friend Dan Morrissey one of the saltiest?" said Mike, "and ain't he the road boss, and ain't he willin' to earn an extra penny for the town?"

"Eh," said I, "for the town? Well, I've got to have this lawn! You get your friend Dan in the morning. Just the same, I don't love the town so much that I want a 250-foot lawn."

Noon came and found me with aching arms and aching shoulder sockets. I had brought some lunch, to save the walk back to Mrs. Temple's, and I took it into my big south room to eat it. Hard was in there eating his. The plumbers were eating theirs in the new kitchen, already completed.

Hard, I found, had begun the bookcase, which was just the height of the mantels. He had been preparing the top molding with his universal plane when noon came, and the sweet shavings lay curled on the floor. I scuffed my feet in them, and even hung one from my ear, as children do, while Hard Cider regarded me scornfully. "I'm going to have great times in this room!" I exclaimed. "Books between the fireplaces, books along the walls, just a few pictures, including my Hiroshiges, over the mantels, my desk by the west window, and out there the green garden! A man ought to write something pretty good in this room, eh?"

Hard looked at me with narrowed eyes. "I don't know nothin' about writin'," he said, "but it 'pears to me a feller could write most anywhar provided he had somethin' ter say."

Whereupon Hard concluded by biting into a large piece of prune pie. The Yankee temperament is occasionally depressing! I went outdoors again, eating my doughnuts as I walked, and strolled into the vegetable garden to survey the stakes rows which denoted beets and peas. Then I went down the slope into my little stand of pines, into the cool hush of them, and unconsciously my brain relaxed in the bath of their peace, and for ten minutes I lay on the needles, neither asleep nor awake, just blissfully vacant. Then I returned to my scoping, marvelously restored.

I scooped and spread and raked until six o'clock when, palm-sore and weary, I drank a great dipperful of water from my copper pump in the kitchen, took a last look at Hard's bookcase, and tramped up the dusty road to supper.

Mrs. Temple was beaming when I came down from my bath. "Well," said she, "in the first place, I've got you the housekeeper I want."

"By which I infer that she's the one I want, too?" I asked. "Of course," said Mrs. Temple, on whom irony had no effect. "She's Mrs. Pillig, from Slab City, and she's an artist in pies. Pillig ain't dead, worse luck, but he's whar he won't trouble you. I guess Peter won't trouble you none, neither. He's a nice boy, and he'll be awful handy round the place."

"Peter Pillig?" I exclaimed. "There ain't no such animal! If there is, Dickens was his grandfather. How old is Peter?"

"Peter's eleven," Mrs. Bert replied. "He's real nice and bright. His mother's brought him up fine. Anyhow, she was a Corliss."

"But, eugenically speaking, Peter may have a predisposition to follow in father's footsteps, which I infer led toward the little green swinging doors," I protested.

"Speakin' U. S. A., tommyrot!" said Mrs. Temple. "Anyhow, it's the door of the drugstore in this town. They sell more'n sody water down to Danforth's."

"What am I to pay the author of Peter and the pies?" I asked.

"Well, seein' how you keep Peter, as it were, and Mrs. Pillig calculates she can rent her house up to Slab City, she's goin' to come to you for twenty dollars a month. She's with it, too. You'll have the best kept and cleanest house in Bentford."

I rose from the table solemnly. "Mrs. Temple," said I, "I accept Mrs. Pillig, Peter and the pies at these terms, but only on one condition: She is never to clean my study!"

"Why?" asked Mrs. Temple. "Because," said I, "you can never tell where an orderly woman will put things."

Bert chuckled as he filled his pipe. Mrs. Temple grinned herself. I was about to make a triumphant exit, when these words from Mrs. Temple's lips arrested me:

"Bert," she said, "did you clean the buggy today? You know you gotta go over ter the deepoot tomorrow an' git that boarder."

"That what?" I cried. Mrs. Bert's eyes half closed with a purely feminine delight. "Oh, ain't I told you?" she said innocently. "We're goin' ter her another boarder, a young lady. From Noo York, too. Her health's broke down, she says, only that's not the way she said it, and somehow she heard of us. 'We ain't never taken many boarders, but I guess our name's in that old railroad advertisin' book. I wouldn't hev took her, only I thought maybe you wuz kind of lonesome here with jest us."

"Mrs. Temple," said I, "your solicitude quite overwhelms me. Comfort me with petticoats! Good Lord! And an amemic, too! I'll bet she has nerves! When can Mrs. Pillig come to me, woman?"

"Mrs. Bert's eyes closed still farther. "Oh, your house ain't near ready yet," she said. "Why, the painters ain't even began."

I fled to my chamber and hauled forth a manuscript. A female boarder! "Hang Mrs. Temple!" I muttered, reading a whole paragraph of manuscript without taking in a word of it.

CHAPTER V.

The Hermit Sings.

The next morning I demanded that Mrs. Temple again put me up some lunch. "For," said I, "I'm going to postpone meeting this broken-down wreck of a perhaps once proud female as long as possible."

"Maybe when you see her drive by you'll be sorry," Mrs. Bert smiled. "I shall be working on the south side of the house," I retorted. "I had not been long at my place,

Indeed, I had scarcely finished watering my scedded and carting out my daily stint of two barrowsloads of slash from the orchard, when I heard the road scraper rattling over the bridge by the brook. Mike came from the vegetable garden and met his "friend Morrissey," to whom I was ceremoniously presented.

The scraper was a large affair with flat-tired iron wheels and a blade eight feet long. The way that eight-foot blade, with four horses hauling it, peeled off the old furrows and brought the top soil down from the high side to the low made my poor efforts with the scoop look puny enough. The lawn was shaping up so fast that I began once more to grow expansive.

"It really won't be square," thought I, "because my percola will cut off twelve feet of the length, and if I have flower beds by the roses they'll cut off some more. I guess those roses ought to be one hundred and twelve feet from the house."

I threw down my shovel, went over to the row of stakes, and moved them south again, twenty-five feet, having added thirteen feet as I walked; then I called out to "friend Morrissey" to bring his scraper.

Dinner Stories

Mrs. Jones had a new maid, who appeared at the door of the library one afternoon, where her mistress was reading.

"There's no coal, mum," said the domestic, "an' th' fires are goin' out."

"No coal!" cried the mistress, in surprise. "Why didn't you tell me before?"

"I couldn't tell you there was no coal, mum," replied the girl, "when there was coal!"

Sloan's Liniment can be obtained at all drug stores, 25c, 50c and $1.00.

Everyday Wisdom

By DON HEROLD

WATCH OUT FOR YOUR NEW DRESS, HONEY

KILLING CHICKENS

Now and then, in the city, we remember something we are missing. The other day it struck us like a bolt of lightning that we don't get to see chickens killed since we came to the city.

Not that we care. Oh, we care a little.

Sometimes we see a window full of bare, nude, naked, undressed, featherless, goose-fleshed chickens hanging upside down in long rows in a show window, but that is as near as we ever get to the tragedy. We never hear that frantic squalling in the chicken park that we used to hear at home on Sunday morning.

Everybody in the neighborhood knew when we were going to have chicken for dinner, and we knew when the Moffets or Welches were going to have chicken. There would be a great squalling and scampering in their backyard, and then a more or less isolated cry of anguish on the part of one particular spring fry—then a muffled silence—then more silence—death—and a pile of wet feathers.

Sometimes father killed our chickens, sometimes mother; sometimes they teamed. Father always used the hatchet when he could find it, and there was a special hacked and feathered two-by-four in the barn-jot for this purpose. Mother more often braced herself on both feet out in the middle of the back yard and wrung their heads off. Then all the children would have to run like sixty to get out of the way.

Then mother would souse the chicken in a black kettle full of boiling water and unrobe him of his feathers. Any little feathers that stayed on would get burned off later with a piece of newspaper.

In the country, chicken for dinner is an adventure and an event; in the city, chicken for dinner is just a dish. It is not much fun.

The Gazette, Janesville—

Gentlemen:—I wish to assure you that my recent auction sale was a success in every respect. I feel that the advertisements run in the Gazette for two issues is largely responsible for this as the sale was largely attended by people from a distance, who purchased most of the high priced stuff. HARVARD CONSIDERS "OPEN" FOOTBALL

Coaches Seriously Thinking About Changing Style—Strategy More Pronounced Than Ever.

New York, Oct. 19.—When Harvard and Yale clash November 25 in the annual big football game, the Harvard coaches may surprise followers of the game by the method of play they adopt for the encounter. After years of adherence to trick formations and punning attack, and concentration upon kicking, the Harvard team has been trying out "the open game" this year. The coaches have been laying more and more stress upon the open game, and in the last few years have been rather sidetracked in favor of straight football. The conservative style of football, which has been Harvard's since Percy Haughton took charge of the team, is not favored so greatly by assistant coaches who have had much to do with building the team this year and with the open formations probably will get their share of attention in the big game. They probably have not been given the full sanction of the famous "old man" but he doubtless will give a large bit of attention to the open style. New formations both in attack and defense have been used with success by both variety and scrub teams in practice.

The almost entirely new material from which the backfield was built this year has made necessary some changes. Flower and Casey stars last year on the freshman eleven, are now among the backs of the team, and probably will be formed. They have never had much schooling in scholastic years in open formations and they yield easier to that kind of instruction.

Peasants vs. Hazelnuts—7:30 game.

The Commodore's tonight took two games from the Walnuts; this drops the latter team down to sixth place and ties the Commodore for seventh. The bowling was a bit slow, though the Commodore managed to roll down one nine hundred game, with Wolcott getting a 212 score. Tonight the Peasants and Hazelnuts will meet, and it is likely that there will be some changes in the percentage table.

Perhaps in no country in the world has boxing reached the development that it has in Australia. And much of this development is due to the efforts of Reginald L. (Snowy) Baker, who owns two stadiums, one in Melbourne and one in Sydney, and is the principle boxing matchmaker in the antipodes.

Baker has an interesting method of developing new talent in the flat out game. His system is good as it has turned out such men as Les Darcy, Dave Smith and others. The doors in Baker's stadiums open at 5:30 in the evening and the first hour is given over to the boxing try out. It is given over to young lads who have pugilistic aspirations. Baker watches these bouts closely, picks out the most likely looking boys and matches them with other amateurs the following week. Then two weeks later, if they still show good form or show possibilities, they are put on a local stage in a fifteen-round affair the next week and finally the twenty-round big scrap.

In this manner Baker is developing some good boys and in a few years expects to have enough talent to carry all the titles in the world. The war has taken many prospective boxers (Australian boxers) to the front, but even there the soldiers hold their boxing contests.

The Chinese baseball team of Hawaii has made a great record in this country. The Chinese are credited with winning thirty-seven out of fifty-five games. With a record of five and six-one victories in 119 battles with leading independent clubs. Three ties were played with independents. Among the Chinese were Brown and Holy Cross. In thirteen games played in and around Philadelphia the Orientals won. The Philadelphia Athletics beat them in Jersey City three times in ten innings to win 2 to 0.

Great hitters produce some unique records in the way of rolling up their averages. Take the case of Ty Cobb. Last season Cobb led the league in hitting and compiled a total of .208. In compiling this record, Ty was also taking many balls consistently. Only once during the 1915 season did he amass as many as four hits in one game. During the season just closed Ty was forced to stop before the slugging prowess of Tris Speaker. Tris hit Ty both in the matter of hitting average as well as in the number of hits registered. Cobb failed to roll up as many safe blows during the 1916 season as he did in 1915. Yet during the season just finished Cobb counted as many as four hits to a game no less than seven times.

Fault is being found with the present scoring system in tennis. Many of the net enthusiasts declare that it is a big mistake to make the one who wins the set the winner of the match. The last national championships illustrate my point. R. Norris Williams and William Johnston were the finalists. The majority of those who saw the match were a unit in declaring that Johnston was the more skillful player; that Johnston, in practical tennis, was the better player. Yet Williams won. And it was endurance that really turned the trick for Williams.

The lameness of George Dauss is one of the reasons given by Hugh Jennings for the failure of the Tigers to land the flag. The bad conduct of Big Bill James is another. The one could not be helped and the other could. Big Bill James and Jim Scott would pair off well together, because of the failure to give their teams the best efforts during the last summer.

The Cornell varsity team was strengthened materially recently when Clarence Tiller, a veteran line backer, joined the squad. He ought to be in shape inside of ten days. Two years ago Tiller played guard on the Cornell team. He was a utility lineman playing both guard and tackle, but in the Pennsylvania game he played left tackle. Dan Reed plans to place him at center.

Country calls will be $1.00 per mile in addition to the $2.00 for the visit.

WOULD HAVE VOTED FOR ADAMSON LAW SAYS WALTER OWEN

Attorney General Endorses Hughes But Fails to See Eight Hour Law as a Campaign Issue.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Kiel, Wis., Oct. 19.—Approval of the eight hour law recently enacted by congress; condemnation of the present tariff law as discriminating against the interest of the farmers and high taxation for Charles E. Hughes, the republican presidential candidate, were the features of the speech delivered here last night by Attorney General Walter C. Owen.

"Candor compels me to say that if some of the things that are being urged as issues in the campaign were to be accepted by me as the dominant issues I could not be supporting the republican party in this campaign," said Mr. Owen. "I have voted for the eight hour law, as did every one of the republicans in congress from this state. If for no other reason I should have voted for it because I think that knowledge derived from investigation, study and research cannot be obtained by the ordinary citizen in the time available for his work. It is a trustworthy service for a greater period than eight hours out of twenty-four."

"Already there are instances in this state, especially employers of female labor, who have voted for the eight hour law from ten to nine. Because of these considerations I cannot endorse the position of some of my republican brethren, who seem to insist that the so-called eight hour law is being passed by congress should be made the dominating issue of this campaign and should dictate the defeat of President Wilson."

Next Mr. Owen took up the war issue and declared that he did not think the American people "should permit themselves to become panicky over the subject of war."

Speaking of the Underwood tariff bill, Mr. Owen said that if for no other reason it should be condemned because it is an unfairness to the farmers of the northwest.

The farmer is just now getting to where a protective tariff system, so far as it applies to the products of the northwest, would yield a direct benefit to him," continued Mr. Owen. "The Underwood tariff bill was framed in the interest of the farmer of the northwest; in fact, it is principally the farmer of the northwest who has a right to complain."

The bill is sectional in its discrimination. It is sectional in this country has always prospered under republican rule. It has never failed to come to financial and industrial disaster under democratic rule. The tariff is not a coincidence. It is due to the essential differences of policy on the part of the two great parties."

Praises Hughes' Record.

Attorney General Owen then spoke of the character and ability of nominee Hughes. He said that Hughes' public record was an inspiration. It would be no man's man. He gave a minute review of the public record of the presidential candidate.

"The people, with great ability, with great justice and with great fairness," concluded the attorney general in recording the work of the republican presidential nominee.

AMERICAN REPORTER HAS TIME IN LONDON

Buys a "Club" And Has a Great Job Learning to Handle it—Don't Like Their Eating Houses.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Oct. 19.—Right at the entrance of a London tea-room is a table holding a platter of pastry—fire-cracker cakes with the chromatic scale worked into the frosting. The colored junk varies from Colorado Maduro to Alice Blue and looks a power for evil.

The American customer began to have misgivings for his ham-and-eggs the moment he stepped in. Some how those hand-grenades proclaimed against anything so substantial as his favorite fruit.

Finding his way to a marble-topped table he hung up his hat and raincoat, planted his right elbow in a puddle of cologne and settled down to wait.

Pretty soon—well, not pretty soon, but after a while, a dame came over and mopped up what his coat-sleeve hadn't absorbed, inquiring "inkew?" That's a sticker, that "inkew!" It's Londonese for "thank you," and signifies for all occasions. In this case meant, "well, stranger, what's yours?"

"I guess I'll have something to eat," he ventured; "maybe you can suggest something."

"Would you like some nice tea and jam?" That didn't seem very nourishing. He compromised on a poached egg and chocolate and of course he got bean pie and tea.

But it's no use complaining; it's war time and things are so rushed! The tea-room is the London edition of the off-the-arm lunch, and a connoisseur of five years' experience in American dairy lunches can draw comparisons.

Just take it from him that a dead herring for breakfast isn't in it with "two-and-sixpence" or "two in, three out," but that it has to be pushed out of the pot doesn't stimulate a lagging ambition like regular coffee with honest cream.

Flopping from state to lament, there is the little matter of shirts. There's nothing wrong with the quality and Chicago can't beat the price. It's the design that's archaic. The shirt and the tie so wear the knot after the hair has been neatly plastered.

"We introduced coat-shirts," said a haberdasher, "and had to sell them at a loss after a year. There is a trick getting into the old-fashioned kind and we get our morning calicheonies while dressing."

"I say, about a bit of a stick," he said, "we have some topping ones, just received."

Sure he bought a stick, the poor boob; and tripped over it. He hadn't time to get up before he was on the ground. He tried to swing it jauntily—a cane should always be swung jauntily—and boomed the man walking ahead of him. He tried a sedate walk, planting his head and shoulders straight down, and not to strike innocent bystanders and managed to trip a pretty brunette into a lamp-post. But he stuck to the task and finally caught the knave in the right hand, swung in a liberal arc, the point striking the sidewalk simultaneously with the right heel on every second step. It's in four four time and an ever stroke, except for running for a bus or clambering to the upper deck, when the cane may be carried in the teeth or either hand or anywhere else just so it doesn't jab the man behind in the eye. The safest way, however, is to have a friend stand in the street and throw it up.

Entering a restaurant the club should be carefully handed to the head waiter, who will hang it on an inconvenient bar-rack. When the cripple is standing talking to a friend, it is used as a prop to lean upon, and when he is seated in a bus or a tub, it is held in his hands over the handle and looks like a fabled fool.

WHERE THE BOYS WILL CELEBRATE AFTER BADGERS BEAT CHICAGO SATURDAY

Madison, Wis., Oct. 19.—There is a place in this town where a man can get all he wants to drink for a cent. It is at Hiram Smith hall—the dairy building—where a huge tank has been installed in the corridor. Every day about 150 thirsty individuals drop a cent in a slot and get a paper cup which they can fill with buttermilk from the tank as many times as they can drink.

TO PROPOSE CHANGE IN LAWS REGARDING HEALTH CONDITIONS

May Propose Grouping of Small Communities into Health District in Charge of a Competent Official.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 19.—Legislation for the improvement of public health administration in Wisconsin will be proposed at the next session of the legislature, to open in January. A measure of chief importance, now under consideration, aims to raise the qualifications and competence of local health officers. It is proposed to enlarge the health units by permitting the grouping of adjacent communities into health districts, each under the supervision of a well qualified and properly paid public health expert.

This plan is not designed to abolish the local health officer, but will permit the hiring of a competent man in order to secure the most efficient service. A county health officer, while desirable to have in some ways, is not considered practicable because such a health officer would be obliged to cover too much ground at the expense of efficiency. On account of the large territory to be supervised by a health officer, it would be necessary to employ local health officers in order properly to handle such emergencies as disease outbreaks, quarantine, abatement of nuisances, and other occurrences requiring immediate action or remedy.

The state health department has long held that a community is better off when it employs a full-time health officer than when it uses the spare time of a busy practicing physician or a layman. This has been a problem for the small incorporated towns and cities. With only a few inhabitants, such towns are nevertheless required by law to have a health officer. They can pay neither the salary nor the expenses of a properly qualified public health expert.

The solution of this problem, in the belief of the state health officials, lies in grouping small communities into health districts, each containing enough people to justify and permit the maintenance of a complete health department with an expert full-time health officer at its head. Wisconsin has about 1,500 local health officers, many of them in places of less than one thousand inhabitants. They can not expect to have the training and experience of health officers. If they had, it would be wasteful, because the unit of health government is often too small. Combination into suitable districts contemplates giving a competent unit for each administration.

"In order to settle the legal difficulties which now confront communities which wish to combine into local health districts," said a state health official today, "a state law is needed which will permit such organization and definitely settle the procedure. Such a law will enable towns, villages and cities to realize the benefits of a health department capable of giving proper protection to their citizens. By uniting they will be able to employ a trained, full-time public health executive in charge of their health department. This could be accomplished at low per capita expense if the local district is made to include a suitable population. For example, a 30,000 people. Much expense might be saved by eliminating the duplication of the present system under which every town works by itself or neglects disease prevention. It is wasteful to maintain three part-time executives in three small adjacent cities. Business efficiency is needed in local health work. We should get more results for every dollar spent."

COMPENSATION LAW DISLIKED IN PANAMA

Merchants and Business Interests Oppose Statute Passed by Republic's Assembly.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Panama, Oct. 19.—The employers' liability law which has passed the national assembly and is in the hands of the President for signature is being vigorously opposed by local business interests and foreign corporations doing business in the Republic. The latter feel that in event of the act becoming a law it will be applied unequally and made a means of discouraging the investment of capital.

The most objectionable feature, according to the opposing employers, is the provision of half pay during sickness incurred while at work. It is believed to be capable of infinite abuse, for the reason that many of the laborers lay off a great deal and lie around their quarters in a condition of sickness which is the result of hookworm and lack of proper nourishment. About 70 per cent of the people have the hookworm, according to the reports of the doctor-general. Foundation and in some districts over half of the people are chronically infected with malarial fever.

Another prime objection to the law lies in the procedure outlined for its application. This requires that
